

Collective Learning in Participatory Planning

Dominika Pazder

Professor, Faculty of Architecture, Poznan University of Technology, Poznań, Poland

Abstract

The presentation is to identify various modes of participatory planning aiming at social consciousness strengthening about spatial planning and common space development. The author presents different roles of university in promoting and boosting collective learning. There are shown chosen case studies from Poznan University of Technology experiences in that field.

